REPORT
2017/18

Acknowledgment

WANADA acknowledges Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people as the Traditional Custodians of this country and its waters. We wish to pay our respect to Elders past and present and extend this to all Aboriginal people seeing this message.

About WANADA

The Western Australian Network of Alcohol and other Drug Agencies (WANADA) is the peak body for the specialist alcohol and other drug sector in Western Australia, encompassing education, prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and support services.

Serving the alcohol and other drug sector since 1984, WANADA is a proudly independent not-for-profit organisation. We advocate for a human services sector that significantly improves the health and wellbeing of individuals, families and communities by addressing alcohol and other drugs.

VISION

A human services sector that significantly improves the health and wellbeing of individuals, families and communities by addressing alcohol and other drugs.

MISSION

To lead a shared voice within the specialised alcohol and other drug sector that drives positive change.

Chairperson's Welcome

I was very pleased to accept the invitation from the WANADA Board to take on the role as Chair. It was a particular honour to follow from the excellent service provided by Terry Murphy to this important role. I take this opportunity to acknowledge Terry's significant contribution to the specialist alcohol and other drug service sector, including his four years as WANADA's Chair. I hope that, from my first meeting in the role in May 2018, I have been able to contribute to a smooth transition.

The first handover task for me as Chairperson was to lead the development of a Joint Statement of Values and Principles between WANADA and the Mental Health Commission. The Joint Statement acknowledges our shared purpose of addressing alcohol and other drug concerns to achieve sustainable best outcomes for those affected by alcohol and other drug use and indeed for the whole Western Australian community.

The WA Mental Health, Alcohol and other Drug Services Plan 2015 – 2025 clearly identifies that there are significant challenges for us to address. Whilst there has been welcome advances in funding and activity, there is still a significant gap in service provision against need. While we work closely with the whole sector and all levels of government, we also recognise the importance of building the quality, effectiveness and impact of all of our services. The WANADA Board have determined that sector promotion is a high priority for the field. Media and community commentary repeatedly highlight limited awareness of what services are available, how to access these services, and what should be expected in terms of quality and evidence informed practice.

To effectively promote the sector we need a strong and cohesive voice. WANADA will be drafting position papers that we hope the whole sector will find valuable in their own work, including engagement with the community, media and politicians and in sector planning discussions. The priority positions identified by the WANADA Board include: addressing stigma and discrimination; enhancing and assuring service quality; and cross-sector collaboration (particularly to address hepatitis C and other complex issues).

The future focus of the dedicated WANADA team will be contributing to community confidence in alcohol and other drug services. We encourage WANADA members to get behind this drive. We have much to celebrate but also many challenges to meet.

CEO's Statement

2017/18 has been yet another busy year at WANADA. This annual report, disguised as a calendar, demonstrates some of the sector support and capacity building activities we have undertaken, as well as key policy and advocacy engagement.

All of WANADA's activities are informed by the sector. Many of the activities have required significant input from our members, on reference and steering groups, participating in consultations, and contributing to information sharing for systems improvements and sector-wide development. This is no mean feat given services have been busier than ever this year with ever increasing service responsibilities and accountability requirements.

The Mental Health Commission's commitment to achieving the service and systems expansion goals of the WA Mental Health, Alcohol and other Drug Services Plan 2015 – 2025, and the State Government's continued focus on alcohol and other drug issues is to be applauded. WANADA has represented the sector's views to promote future priorities for continuous improvement – culminating in documents such as the State of the Sector Report, and 2019 Pre-Budget Submission. Identifying priorities, within a year of continual reform, has relied on strong working relationships with both members and decision makers.

I thank the WANADA Board for their support and guidance. In particular I thank the chairs – Steve Allsop and Terry Murphy - for contributing their significant expertise in the alcohol and other drug sector. I also thank the WANADA team for their professionalism, dedication and commitment to social justice and improvement.

DIVERSITY

We promote inclusive and accepting communities, and culturally secure services that enable equitable access

- WANADA Strategic Plan 2017-19

WANADA values the diversity of both our sector and the communities in which we operate. We seek to make a difference by celebrating our diversity and growing connections so that anyone, regardless of their circumstances, cultural background or location, can access quality alcohol and other drug services that meet their specific needs.

Diverse Membership

WANADA has a rich, inclusive and diverse membership. Our members are diverse in their structure, philosophy, approach and location. Member views, experiences and challenges inform WANADA's policy, advocacy and sector development work.

The WANADA membership includes not-for-profit (93%), government (5%) and private (2%) services that provide a range of education, prevention, harm reduction, withdrawal, treatment, rehabilitation and support services to people and communities across Western Australia. Many of our member organisations are involved in service delivery outside of the metropolitan area (38%) and there are a number that provide Aboriginal-specific services (20%).

Our member organisations employ a diverse workforce of alcohol and other drug specialists. Figures from 2015 estimate that the alcohol and other drug sector employs approximately 1,200 people, with recent WANADA consultation identifying 61% of the workforce as female (2017). A significant proportion (68%) of the workforce are aged 40 years or over, with only 30% of the workforce under 30 years of age.

Collectively, with the support of our members, WANADA is driven to achieve best outcomes for consumers, their families and the broader community.

Collective Initiatives

WANADA's collective initiatives connect our membership with cost-effective support services that enhance both equitable access for service users and sector staff wellbeing.

Childcare Access Program This program supports equity of service access, by enabling many parents and/or caregivers of under school-aged children to access specialist alcohol and other drug services. WANADA covered the cost of 147 occasions of childcare in 2017/18.

Interpreter Access Program Acknowledging our State's diverse population, this WANADA program supports equity of service access by covering the costs of interpreting services for: people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds; those wishing to have cultural advisors; the Deaf and hard of hearing; and those that require carer support. This program funded interpreting services for 16 languages over the past year.

Employee Access Program WANADA provides an umbrella EAP program to support the wellbeing of employees and volunteers from member services and their family members. This initiative covered a total of 1,309 employees, volunteers and family members in 2017/18.

"The EAP project is a very tangible benefit of being a WANADA member. It is a huge saving in terms of financial and time resources, and that is very important to a small organisation like ours." – Member Feedback

SECTOR LEADER IN THE

Looking Forward Moving Forward Project

WANADA continually strives to improve our practices to be more inclusive and culturally secure. We have been a proud contributor to the Looking Forward project since 2013, embracing the ethical principles that provide a foundation for working with Nyoongar people, including: securing trust, creating relationships, sustaining commitment, and working partnerships. Through this project, we intend to build the capacity of both WANADA and the sector to be flexible, confident and competent in supporting Aboriginal families.

Across 2018, WANADA staff have met with Aboriginal Elders Aunty Oriel Green and Aunty Moya Newman for storying sessions to build a foundation for working collaboratively. We have relished the opportunity to continue to meet regularly with the Aboriginal Elders to work together to improve cultural security within WANADA and to provide guidance in the work that WANADA does with the sector.

We have complemented this with participation in working groups addressing governance, workforce and cultural security together with Aboriginal Elders, the Looking Forward Moving Forward team and other stakeholders.

INTEGRITY

We are committed to member feedback and experience, sound evidence, consumer participation, and continuous quality improvement.

- WANADA Strategic Plan 2017-19

WANADA believes the strength of the alcohol and other drug sector is through its connection to other sectors, a contemporary evidence base and quality processes. We strive to link the sector with key issues, decision makers and relevant service sectors. In support of a specialist sector and workforce, we promote engagement with research opportunities, and continue to build our sector's focus on quality through the review of the Standard on Culturally Secure Practice.

REPRESENTING THE SECTOR

"WANADA's work in progressing strategies to address stigma and discrimination in Western Australia is commendable. The success of advocacy efforts through reform initiatives including the Sustainable Health Review and the Methamphetamine Action Plan are positive."

- Contract Officer, Mental Health Commission

WANADA connects the sector with key government decision makers, and promotes the sector's specific strengths and needs, to ensure they are reflected in policy, program and funding processes.

One key activity is the WANADA's State of the Sector Report series, which provide snapshots over time of the wellbeing of the Western Australian alcohol and other drug service sector. Released in 2018, the second report in this series identified that in response to an evolving environment, the sector had clearly determined that it needed to re-evaluate its position and has reasserted its unique value to the community and government, strengthening its resolve to continuously improve the services delivered.

The Report highlighted sector strengths such as community connection, quality, responsiveness and cross sector collaboration. It also outlined a range of improvement opportunities that would best support the sector, in particular the need for a Centre of Excellence, the development of a collective data and outcomes system, and increased resourcing for the WA Alcohol and Other Drug Interagency Strategy.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUG CONFERENCE 2018

Over 350 sector workers, volunteers, researchers and students from across the state and country gathered together at the 2018 Western Australian Alcohol and Other Drug Conference, Leading the Way: Embracing New Opportunities in the Alcohol and Other Drug Sector, co-hosted by the Mental Health Commission and WANADA.

The Conference brought together local, national and international speakers to present on alcohol and other drug-related policy, prevention, harm reduction, criminal justice, research, and treatment. Delegates were provided with numerous opportunities for professional networking, collaboration, discussion and debate around the themes of the Conference.

WANADA secured a Lotterywest grant to support consumers, including family members, and regional, rural and remote sector service workers and volunteers to share their valued and unique perspectives at the Conference. The grant funds were well received and supported 68 delegates to attend the Conference.

"Thank you for the subsidy I received to attend such a wonderful Conference with such great, thought provoking and interesting speakers."

REVIEW OF THE WANADA Standard

WANADA is coordinating a review involving wide consultation with interested parties to refine and improve the current Standard on Culturally Secure Practice. The project is overseen by a Steering Group comprising representatives from a diverse range of stakeholders.

Consultation indicates strong continued support for the Standard. The Standard is seen as consumer focussed, evidence informed and aligned to what the sector does. It is valued as a catalyst for continuous improvement, which supports strong processes and systems and results in improved services and outcomes. Improvements identified through consultation have resulted in a Standard that is more robust and concise. The focus on cultural responsiveness and understanding and responding to community needs and expectations has been further strengthened, as have governance, risk and quality improvement.

The Standard's new name "Alcohol and other Drug and Human Services Standard" and accompanying tag line "Informed | Responsive | Safe" aims to capture the Standard's intent and highlight its uniqueness as an alcohol and other drug sector standard, while making clear its applicability to a range of service types.

The new Standard is due for release in June 2019 and will be accompanied by an Interpretive Guide and a suite of tools and resources.

INNOVATION

We advocate for new collaborative practices, diverse service types and policy directions that build the long term sustainability of the alcohol and other drug sector

- WANADA Strategic Plan 2017-19

WANADA believes that everyone has a role in reducing harms associated with alcohol and other drug use. To this end, we strive to work collaboratively to continually improve individual, organisation, and community outcomes. By connecting services and people with emerging issues and opportunities, we contribute to building both the sustainability of the sector and an inclusive, collective vision of our future.

ENGAGING THE SECTOR ON Emerging Issues and Trends

Alcohol and other drugs impact all Western Australian communities, every sector and our economy. In our advocacy, WANADA strives to build connections across policies, portfolios and sectors, to ensure we work together to address harms associated with alcohol and other drugs.

Central to our advocacy is linking the sector with emerging issues and trends, to ensure we contribute to the forefront of policy and program development, and remain responsive to issues in our communities.

Across 2017/18, WANADA supported a sector voice in over 30 State and National policy and reform processes. In doing so, we championed the need for a collective, coordinated approach that builds on existing knowledge and strengths. Our sector voice spanned issues as varied as welfare, FIFO, workforce, prevention, labelling, consumer engagement, justice, corrections, health and government inquiries and taskforces.

Over the past year, WANADA hosted a number of events that informed the sector and supported a collective voice on emerging issues and trends, including the alcohol minimum floor pricing forum, codeine up-scheduling forum, residential services forums, and regional, rural and remote manager networking forums.

"I just had a read of the latest FYI and I wanted to congratulate you on a great publication – it's so useful to have such a diverse range of information in one place including what's happening locally, media releases, policy directions and research."

CROSS SECTOR CAPACITY BUILDING

"This project has been so valuable for our organisation, staff and the people we support. It's made a real difference!"

– Manager, Participating Community Service Provider in the Cross Sector Capacity Building Project

WANADA recognises that everyone across society and sectors has a role to play in addressing alcohol and other drug issues. It is on this basis that we work to connect other sectors with the tools required to identify, support and best refer people experiencing alcohol and other drug issues.

In 2017/18 WANADA led a project, in collaboration with community service providers across homelessness, social support and domestic violence sectors, that identified workforce development needs and developed and implemented strategies to build the capability of the cross sector workforce in responding to alcohol and other drugs. The project encompassed individual, organisation, structural and systemic factors such as staff training and development, policy and procedure development including supervision processes, and the development and enhancement of partnerships.

The final outcome of the project was the development of a model of support that can be applied broadly to other community service organisations to assist them to better support people impacted by alcohol and other drugs.

ENGAGING STUDENTS

WANADA believes that students hold the key to an inclusive and sustainable approach to addressing alcohol and other drug issues in Western Australia. By increasing their awareness of sector career opportunities and growing their openness to working with people who use alcohol and other drugs, students have the potential to build our workforce, reduce barriers to service access, and improve connections between sectors.

WANADA continues to offer a unique student placement experience for students to apply their specialty knowledge in an alcohol and other drug context. With WANADA providing induction and coordinating supervision, member services and the students co-design a project or a range of activities tailored to meet the student's learning objectives as well as benefiting the service.

In 2017/18, WANADA supported 23 student placements and internships across seven Australian universities. Students from a range of disciplines have completed the program, including students completing tertiary studies in medicine, nursing, exercise and sports science, health promotion, health science, nutrition and dietetics, paramedics, pharmacy, population health, and public health.

"Student placements are great. We learn as much from them as they do from us. They bring a fresh perspective and new energy."
